

Michael Livingston was raised in the village of Cold Bay (pop. 32) on the Alaska Peninsula and attended Kodiak High School and Bristol Bay High School. Michael holds a masters degree in anthropology, a doctoral degree in education, and has served as principal investigator with the National Science Foundation. Mike's recent research work includes correcting Benny Benson's birth certificate and honoring of US Army Private George Fox who was born in Alaska and killed in action in Italy during WWII. Mike enjoys Alaska trivia, Blender 3.6, and editing maps.